Construction and Business

Q: How will construction affect my business access?

A: UDOT and the contractor will work together to keep business accesses open during construction. The contractor will also place business-access signs along the corridor to show motorists the location of all access points.

If work must take place in front of an access point, the contractor will coordinate a temporary closure with the business.

Access points are usually closed for:

- Road excavation and utility work
- Gravel or road base installation
- Paving and pavement curing (Steel plates are often used to allow traffic to drive over an access that has not cured.)

Businesses owners should give the project team information about hours of operation and special events so the contractor can keep access points open during critical times.

Q: What will happen to my business sign?

A: UDOT has identified signs that will be impacted by the project and has compensated business owners for those signs through the Right of Way process. The project team will notify business owners when they should move their signs. Moving and replacing signs is the responsibility of individual business owners.

Q: How will business parking be affected?

A: Most parking areas will be open throughout construction. If brief parking access restrictions are necessary, the contractor may ask businesses to temporarily share parking areas.
